

Spring Quarter 2018 Course: AES 498A: History and Memory: Race, Archives and Afterlives of War

This course explores the power embedded in the narration of history. Who gets to claim particular events and moments as history and how does the personal challenge these narratives? What are our archives and how do race and gender determine what is worthy of curation?

We will explore these themes as well as the question of cultural and collective memory, feminist memory, subjugated knowledge and examine Southeast Asian American intergenerational experience.

AMERICAN
ETHNIC STUDIES

SLN: 10191

Tues & Thurs: 10:30a-12:20p

5 Credits/ I&S & VLPA

Instructor: Linh T. Nguyễn, Assistant Professor